INDEPENDENCE STRESSED

Most Of Nation Declares
Official a Hero

VIENNA, Feb. 25 — (UP) — Austrian Nazis demonstrated angrily today in reaction to Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's vigorous speech proclaiming Austria's independence and warning against the spread of Nazism in Austria.

The ministry of education ordered the university technical college at Graz closed because students joined in the Nazi demonstrations.

Between 500 and 600 students of the college at Linz paraded, demanding union with Germany and shouting:

"Hell Hitler! One nation, one Reich!"

Speech Explained

The demonstration came after teachers had explained the significance of the speech, as was done at colleges elsewhere in Austria.

Nevertheless, the majority of the country hailed Schuschnigg as a national hero.

Schuschnigg had gone on record as determined that Austria's independence and Christian state foundations should be defended to the death.

It was admitted, in view of the speech, that the dangers to be feared had been exaggerated by an overstrung, war-scarred world. Schuschnigg and many persons of the Danubian basin generally had been inclined to believe that Fuehrer Adolf Hitler could be trusted not to use armed force against Austria. Yet an avalanche of rumor had buried this fact.

In view of the strong nature of Schuschnigg's speech, however, and plain signs of Nazi resentment, it was realized everywhere that the repercussions of the Chancellor's address might be wide. Germany has a powerful trade weapon as a reserve in event that Nazis regarded the government here as recalcitrant or uncooperative. Economic difficulties have been for years a basic weakness in dismembered Austria, a heart without a body. This was evident in the undertones of Schuschnigg's speech yesterday, but he could not speak too plainly because his immediate job was to emphasize his, and the country's, diplomatic success at the Berchtesgaden negotiations with Hitler.

Schuschnigg Cheered

Tens of thousands of people cheered Schuschnigg as he left Parliament last night. Unaccompanied by any guard, even plain

LITTLE DOG TO BENEFIT FROM ESTATE OF $30,000

CHICAGO, Feb. 25 — (UP) — "Pet," a little white Eskimo Spitz, had no worries today. A circuit court order made him Chicago's richest dog, assured of an annual income from a $30,000 estate.

The money was left in trust by his 70-year-old mistress, Margaret McDermott, who died in June, 1935, and whose allocation of her estate was contested by Martin Clark and Mary Pendergast, her cousins. They charged she was incompetent.

Judge Joseph Burke upheld the will after hearing only the testimony of Miss McDermott's attorney, Oscar A. Ross.

Terms Consecutive

Guy Walter Mathewson, 65, of Columbus, was sentenced Thursday to two penitentiary terms of one to three years each, to be served consecutively, after being found guilty of charges of obtaining money under false pretenses.

The sentences were imposed by Judge J. W. Adkins of Common Pleas court. Mathewson waived a jury trial.

Radio-Controlled "Baby Bombers" Studied by U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — (UP) — Fleets of radio-controlled "baby bombers" capable of showering high explosives behind enemy lines were foreseen today by high army officials as a possible new phase of aerial warfare.

Military authorities are watching closely tests now being conducted privately with a miniature, wireless-controlled plane. This plane is not a bomber, however, but is intended for anti-aircraft practice.

If the tests are successful, army officers will plan fleets of about 60 planes each for mass flights to enemy objectives. By means of selective radio control, as many as 12 of these planes could be directed by one radio.

Army authorities pointed out that because the planes would be entirely automatic and would carry no personnel, small numbers of these craft probably would be vulnerable to enemy planes and anti-aircraft weapons.

"Fill the air with a fleet of 60 or more of these planes and you'll be able to inflict plenty of damage on enemy positions," one official asserted.

Stripped of everything but the barest flying equipment, the planes would travel at high speed and carry bombs of 50 or 100 pounds each. Some authorities believe they might be a formidable adjunct to the nation's fighting force.

Radio-controlled full-sized bombing craft were tested in this country as long ago as 1924, and army authorities said three such planes of German manufacture were sent over the allied lines during the latter part of the World War.

Several years ago a regular sized plane, equipped with automatic pilot and bombing device, was tested near New York city. An army aviator, who travelled in the ship as an observer, reported the equipment worked perfectly.

When the plane reached a certain spot, he said, he heard a click. Looking down he noticed the ship was directly above a circular target marked on the President Azana was believed to have approved a final draft of a reply to Great Britain regarding the withdrawal of volunteers from the Spanish civil strife and other problems.

Up Acreage In Perry
Township

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 — (UP) — The Federal Resettlement administration filed an action Friday in federal district court to compel delivery of three parcels of land in Perry township, Pickaway county, purchased in 1936.

Valdo R. McCoy, of Washington C. H., one of the three defendants, refused to accept his share of the $87,058 purchase price tendered by the government, it is contended.

Federal authorities claimed that the purchase was bonafide transaction and that McCoy should be forced to accept the money and relinquish his ownership.

Named also in the suit for technical reasons were Harry and Dorothy McGhee, of Williamsport; McKinley Kirkpatrick, Atlanta; Lulu Kirkpatrick of New Holland, and E. L. Crist of Circleville.

ITALY REDUCING LIBYA GARRISON TO PLEASE BRITS

ROME, Feb. 25 — (UP) — The Italian government is "temporarily" reducing its garrison in Libya, adjoining Egypt, to facilitate the coming British-Italian negotiations, an authoritative source revealed today.

Reduction of the Italian army in Libya has been one of the main points stressed by Britain in preliminary conversations.

A usually well-informed Fascist source said that the government is granting three months furloughs to a "considerable number" of troops now in Libya.

The percentage of soldiers and officers to be furloughed was not divulged. There are two army corps or approximately 80,000 soldiers in Libya, not counting native troops and colonial police.

The same source said the furloughs may be permanent if the British-Italian conversations are successful.

The Libyan movement was considered as a happy augury for the coming conversations, as was the pleased reception here of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's speech declaring Austria's independence.

Prejudice Charges Put
Against Judge

CLEVELAND, Feb. 25 — (UP) — Gov. Martin L. Davey will oppose the attempt to move the hearing of perjury charges against Lee Bradley, who testified before the Ohio senate graft committee, from East Cleveland, it was disclosed today.

Bradley's counsel, E. S. Byers and Marvin C. Harrison, filed an affidavit charging that Judge Stanton Addams of East Cleveland is prejudiced. The affidavit listed six alleged instances of bias.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 — (UP) — A fist fight between Senator J. Ralph Seidner, chairman of the Ohio senate graft investigating committee, and Warwick Roland, Columbus attorney, interrupted the committee's hearing today.

As a result of the fight the committee voted unanimously to cite Roland for contempt of the Senate and to leave nothing undone "to see him behind the bars."

The committee voted to eject Roland from the hearing room and that the transcript of today's testimony, including Senator Seidner's version of the cause of the fight, be turned over to the Franklin County Bar Assn., and the Common Pleas court.

Roland contended he was representing Frank Walker, a witness. The witness denied engaging counsel or bringing Roland to the hearing. Then Roland was instructed to take his place among the spectators and refrain from talking to the witness. Roland left the room and sent a note to Walker by the sergeant-at-arms.

Stopped by Seidner

Walker started to leave the room. Senator Seidner asked him where he was going. "Somebody handed me this note," Walker said. The note asked Walker to come out of the hearing room. It suggested that if James Metzbaum, committee counsel, objected, Walker should tell him he was going to the washroom.

Seidner strode from the room and confronted Roland. "Why did you send this note," he asked. "There is nothing wrong with sending that," Roland said. "Perhaps not, but you certainly have no right to use a trick like that to get the witness out of this hearing when we specifically ordered him to stay," Seidner said.

ARMY ENGINEERS WIN FIGHT WITH ARKANSAS RIVER

FULTON, Ark., Feb. 25 — (UP) — Flood waters held back by levees for three days began to recede today and army engineers said the battle to save the town was won.

The water dropped three-thirds of a foot during the night from the record flood stage of 36.1 where it had remained for 24 hours. Red river was five miles wide and it was estimated approximately 100,000 acres were under water in this section.

Flood situations on other Arkansas streams were clearing. Roads which had been blocked by high water in other parts of the state were being re-opened. The White, St. Francis, Arkansas and Black rivers were rushing their flood toward the Mississippi and were falling at most points.

In Little Rock, Albert Evans, Red Cross director, estimated 25,000 persons had been made homeless during the 10 days. The Red Cross furnished aid to about 16,000 of them, he said. He estimated 550,000 acres had been flooded.

W.P.A. workers continued to patrol the dike here but engineers were hopeful they could be relieved soon.

Military authorities are watching closely tests now being conducted privately with a miniature, wireless-controlled plane. This plane is not a bomber, however, but is intended for anti-aircraft practice.

If the tests are successful, army officers will plan fleets of about 60 planes each for mass flights to enemy objectives. By means of selective radio control, as many as 12 of these planes could be directed by one radio.

Army authorities pointed out that because the planes would be entirely automatic and would carry no personnel, small numbers of these craft probably would be vulnerable to enemy planes and anti-aircraft weapons.

"Fill the air with a fleet of 60 or more of these planes and you'll be able to inflict plenty of damage on enemy positions," one official asserted.

Stripped of everything but the barest flying equipment, the planes would travel at high speed and carry bombs of 50 or 100 pounds each. Some authorities believe they might be a formidable adjunct to the nation's fighting force.

Radio-controlled full-sized bombing craft were tested in this country as long ago as 1924, and army authorities said three such planes of German manufacture were sent over the allied lines during the latter part of the World War.

Several years ago a regular sized plane, equipped with automatic pilot and bombing device, was tested near New York city. An army aviator, who travelled in the ship as an observer, reported the equipment worked perfectly. When the plane reached a certain spot, he said, he heard a click. Looking down he noticed the ship was directly above a circular target marked on the ground.

SIX U. S. PLANES FLYING TOWARD PANAMA AIRPORT

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 25 — (UP) — Six United States bombing planes, returning from a visit to Buenos Aires, left today for Panama.

The bombers, called "flying fortresses," are expected to make the 1800-mile flight in eight or nine hours.

The first plane took off at 6:05 a. m. EST and all were in the air at 6:17.

Lieut. David Gibbs said that the squadron expected to land at the army field in Panama between 2 and 3 p. m., and after refueling make a short hop to Cristobal, Canal Zone.

The bombers will remain at France field in Cristobal about two days where the motors will be checked before returning to their base at Miami.

The return flight is being made in easy stages of 1,800 miles whereas the southward trip was made with only one stop at Lima.

ACTION IN U. S.

LAND IN COUNTY

Valdo McCoy Asked To Give
Up Acreage In Perry
Township

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25—(UP)—The Federal Resettlement administration filed an action Friday in federal district court to compel delivery of three parcels of land in Perry township, Pickaway county, purchased in 1936.

Valdo R. McCoy, of Washington, D. C., one of the three defendants, refused to accept his share of the $87,058 purchase price tendered by the government, it is contended.

Federal authorities claimed that the purchase was bonafide transaction and that McCoy should be forced to accept the money and relinquish his ownership.

Named also in the suit for technical reasons were Harry and Dorothy McGhee, of Williamsport; McKinley Kirkpatrick, Atlanta; Lulu Kirkpatrick, of New Holland, and E. L. Crist of Circleville.

ITALY REDUCING
LIBYA GARRISON
TO PLEASE BRITS

ROME, Feb. 25 — (UP) — The Italian government is "temporarily" reducing its garrison in Libya, adjoining Egypt, to facilitate the coming British-Italian negotiations, an authoritative source revealed today.

Reduction of the Italian army in Libya has been one of the main points stressed by Britain in preliminary conversations.

A usually well-informed Fascist source said that the government is granting three months furloughs to a "considerable number" of troops now in Libya.

The percentage of soldiers and officers to be furloughed was not divulged. There are two army corps or approximately 80,000 soldiers in Libya, not counting native troops and colonial police.

The same source said the furloughs may be permanent if the British-Italian conversations are successful.

The Libyan movement was considered as a happy augury for the coming conversations, as was the pleased reception here of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's speech declaring Austria's independence.

DAVEY FIGHTS PETITION

Prejudice Charges Put
Against Judge

CLEVELAND, Feb. 25—(UP)—Gov. Martin L. Davey will oppose the attempt to move the hearing of perjury charges against Lee Bradley, who testified before the Ohio senate graft committee, from East Cleveland, it was disclosed today.

Bradley's counsel, E. S. Byers and Marvin C. Harrison, filed an affidavit charging that Judge Stanton Addams of East Cleveland is prejudiced. The affidavit listed six alleged instances of bias.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25—(UP)—A fist fight between Senator J. Ralph Seidner, chairman of the Ohio senate graft investigating committee, and Warwick Roland, Columbus attorney, interrupted the committee's hearing today.

As a result of the fight the committee voted unanimously to cite Roland for contempt of the Senate and to leave nothing undone "to see him behind the bars."

The committee voted to eject Roland from the hearing room and that the transcript of today's testimony, including Senator Seidner's version of the cause of the fight, be turned over to the Franklin County Bar Assn., and the Common Pleas court.

Roland contended he was representing Frank Walker, a witness. The witness denied engaging counsel or bringing Roland to the hearing. Then Roland was instructed to take his place among the spectators and refrain from talking to the witness. Roland left the room and sent a note to Walker by the sergeant-at-arms.

Stopped by Seidner

Walker started to leave the room. Senator Seidner asked him where he was going. "Somebody handed me this note," Walker said. The note asked Walker to come out of the hearing room. It suggested that if James Metzbaum, committee counsel, objected, Walker should tell him he was going to the washroom.

Seidner strode from the room and confronted Roland. "Why did you send this note," he asked. "There is nothing wrong with sending that," Roland said. "Perhaps not, but you certainly have no right to use a trick like that to get the witness out of this hearing when we specifically ordered him to stay," Seidner said.

ARMY ENGINEERS
WIN FIGHT WITH ARKANSAS RIVER

FULTON, Ark., Feb. 25—(UP)—Flood waters held back by levees for three days began to recede today and army engineers said the battle to save the town was won.

The water dropped three-tenths of a foot during the night from the record flood stage of 36.1 where it had remained for 24 hours. Red river was five miles wide and it was estimated approximately 100,000 acres were under water in this section.

Flood situations on other Arkansas streams were clearing. Roads which had been blocked by high water in other parts of the state were being re-opened. The White, St. Francis, Arkansas and Black rivers were rushing their flood toward the Mississippi and were falling at most points.

In Little Rock, Albert Evans, Red Cross director, estimated 23,000 persons had been made homeless during the 10 days. The Red Cross furnished aid to about 16,000 of them, he said. He estimated 550,000 acres had been flooded.

W.P.A. workers continued to patrol the dike here but engineers were hopeful they could be relieved soon.

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Private Nazi quarters expressed surprise and resentment today at the firmness with which Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria told his side of negotiations with Germany in his speech to the Austrian diet last night.

Inspired comment was still to come. Newspapers had published the speech—inside usually, but amply—without editorial comment. But interest in the speech, great as it was, was overshadowed by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's indication, in a speech last night at Munich, that measures were to be taken against Jewish "provocateurs" in Germany.

It was a speech to the Nazi "old guard" on the 18th anniversary of Hitler's proclamation of his 25-point Nazi program. It was a private celebration at the famous Munich Hofbrau Haus. Hitler spoke for an hour. However, only the official news agency was permitted to report a summary of it. Hitler told his old guard that Germany's colonies must be restored and that she must have unconditional equality with other powers. He outlined Germany's military, political and economic situation, discussed plans for the year and said:

"Germany wants peace and understanding, but it must be an honorable peace."
He surveyed the early history of his Nazi party and its rise to power. He said that his own prophecies had been increasingly fulfilled since the Nazis assumed power.

the doctors gave her a sedative to quiet her grief.

At 2 a. m., Dr. Roland Davison said that the general had rallied slightly from the deep coma in which he lay for five hours, and that "he appears to be responding to the stimulant they are giving him."

An attendant, explaining the general's slight rally, said that a nurse had approached the bed and called: "General! General!" Pershing opened his eyes, glanced upward and smiled faintly. He nodded his head in recognition but did not try to speak.

The general's ailing heart was beating faintly and irregularly. He was without pain, Dr. Davison said it was doubtful whether he would live through the morning and he believed it inevitable that the general was on his deathbed.

His breathing was barely discernible; his face was a blend of ashen bronze. His thinned, silvery hair and inevitably well-groomed mustache had become slightly disheveled during yesterday's weary, half-spirited struggle to rouse from his stupor.

Personal Aide Red-Eyed
Late last night the general's chauffeur and personal aide, Master Sgt. S. C. Shaeffer, left the desert sanatorium cottage briefly to send a telegram. He was red-eyed.

"Well, boys," he said to newspapermen, "I'm going to leave you now for the last time. It's the last roundup. I'm going to lose my boss and my best friend." Shaeffer had been with the general 10 years.

The general's condition turned for the worse unexpectedly yesterday. His affliction was an acute damage to heart muscles, caused by too strenuous activities in his declining years. He is 77. He became ill last week with a cold and a slight rheumatic condition affecting the left leg. He had planned to be up again this week and had hoped to resume the few public appearances and speaking engagements that he had accepted during his Winter's stay here with his sister. Three days ago he suffered a relapse and was hurried from his hotel room to the hospital cottage in an ambulance. Still his condition was considered hopeful, and doctors thought that his heart strain could be improved by a prolonged rest in bed.

When the second relapse came Gen. Pershing fought it doggedly. Several times he rallied from the coma into semi-consciousness, but after the force of his will weakened, each time he seemed to sink deeper into unconsciousness.

Three doctors were in attendance. In addition to Dr. Davison, the general's personal physician, Lieut. Col. Shelly U. Marietta, army heart specialist from Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and Dr. Verne Mason, professor of clinical medicine at the University of Southern California, had speeded here by airplane to provide what aid they might for the commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary force in the World War.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Charging that the state could have saved $82,500 a year on a liquor trucking contract, members of the senate graft investigating committee today prepared to ask Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy to take legal steps to void the existing contract.

Robert M. Shaw, president of Shaw Transport, Inc., testified before the committee late yesterday that his firm held a state liquor trucking contract which called for 17 cents on a case. He said the same contract was sub-let to the U. S. Trucking Lines for 11 1/2 cents a case.

John F. Nolan, Jefferson county Democratic leader, holds one-third of the stock in Shaw Transport, the committee was told.

Metcalf Takes Lead

Sen. Verner E. Metcalf, Republican committee member and an attorney, said he would give Attorney General Duffy 30 days in which to file court action to vacate the trucking contract. If it is not done within that time, he will file suit as an individual, he said.

Shaw said he did not know why the state liquor department did not contract directly with U. S. Trucking Lines for 11 1/2 cents a case instead of paying his firm 17 cents.

The committee said it would ask Liquor Director James W. Miller why the trucking contract was awarded to Shaw Transport.

The $82,500 figure was based on an estimated 1,500,000 cases handled in 1937 at 5 1/2 cents a case more than U. S. Trucking Lines is receiving for doing the actual hauling.

Sen. Metcalf pointed out that 1,000 persons could have received old age pensions for one year from the liquor profits if the $82,000 had not been spent. He said he would get an explanation of the contract "or know the reason why."

Shaw Transport was incorporated Jan. 15, 1937, and the next day was given the liquor department's trucking contract, the committee said. The contract previously had been held by U. S. Trucking Lines. Shaw Transport immediately sub-let the contract back to U. S. Trucking Lines.

Shaw testified that a dividend of about $70,000 will be divided soon among Bert Kemmerling, Cleveland automobile dealer; Nolan, and himself. Shaw said the total possible liability of the three stockholders is $3033. He said the three "put up" about $1000 to start the company.

Chillicothe Testifies
Emmet Moore, Chillicothe coal dealer, told the committee he had difficulty selling coal to the state and finally was given a note by State Purchasing Agent Glenn Horn telling him that "Mr. Goggin wants to see you."

Moore said he tried to see William Goggin, connected with Democratic state headquarters, but that Goggin was not in his office. His coal business with the state then fell off sharply, Moore stated.

Roy N. DeWeese, Columbus plumbing supply man, testified that he was solicited for contributions to Democratic state headquarters. He said his firm once was low bidder on some state work but did not get the contract.

Marshall Burns, bookkeeper for a Martins Ferry asphalt firm, testified that his firm made payments

Pealer declined to reveal whether he ever had represented the Gallon Iron Works, and whether he had made payments to Democratic headquarters on machinery the company sold to the state.

Pealer said to answer those questions would violate the rights of his client.

clothed detectives, he tried to drive home. The crowd surged in and stopped his car by mass power, and he left it to march at the head of a gigantic informal parade to the gates of the old imperial palace, where he mounted a rostrum and waved to the people. Then he was permitted to drive on.

BERLIN, Feb. 25—(UP)—Private Nazi quarters expressed surprise and resentment today at the firmness with which Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria told his side of negotiations with Germany in his speech to the Austrian diet last night.

Inspired comment was still to come. Newspapers had published the speech—inside usually, but amply—without editorial comment. But interest in the speech, great as it was, was overshadowed by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's indication, in a speech last night at Munich, that measures were to be taken against Jewish "provocateurs" in Germany.

It was a speech to the Nazi "old guard" on the 18th anniversary of Hitler's proclamation of his 25-point Nazi program. It was a private celebration at the famous Munich Hofbrau Haus. Hitler spoke for an hour. However, only the official news agency was permitted to report a summary of it. Hitler told his old guard that Germany's colonies must be restored and that she must have unconditional equality with other powers. He outlined Germany's military, political and economic situation, discussed plans for the year and said:

"Germany wants peace and understanding, but it must be an honorable peace."

He surveyed the early history of his Nazi party and its rise to power. He said that his own prophecies had been increasingly fulfilled since the Nazis assumed power.

PERSHING, NEAR DEATH, RALLIES DURING MORNING

Son, Sister At Bedside As Stimulant Is Injected
Into Calves Of Legs

the doctors gave her a sedative to quiet her grief.

At 2 a. m., Dr. Roland Davison said that the general had rallied slightly from the deep coma in which he lay for five hours, and that "he appears to be responding to the stimulant 'they are giving him'."

He said the general was semi-conscious at the moment.

Miss Pershing walked to the bedside as Dr. Davison left the room and held the general's hand. Then she began placing cold packs on his forehead.

An attendant, explaining the general's slight rally, said that a nurse had approached the bed and called: "General! General!" Pershing opened his eyes, glanced upward and smiled faintly. He nodded his head in recognition but did not try to speak.

The general's ailing heart was beating faintly and irregularly. He was without pain. Dr. Davison said it was doubtful whether he would live through the morning and he believed it inevitable that the general was on his deathbed.

His breathing was barely discernible; his face was a blend of ashen bronze. His thinned, silvery hair and inevitably well-groomed mustache had become slightly disheveled during yesterday's weary, half-spirited struggle to rouse from his stupor.

Personal Aide Red-Eyed

Late last night the general's chauffeur and personal aide, Master Sgt. S. C. Shaeffer, left the desert sanatorium cottage briefly to send a telegram. He was red-eyed.

"Well, boys," he said to newspapermen, "I'm going to leave you now for the last time. It's the last roundup. I'm going to lose my boss and my best friend." Shaeffer had been with the general 10 years.

The general's condition turned for the worse unexpectedly yesterday. His affliction was an acute damage to heart muscles, caused by too strenuous activities in his declining years. He is 77. He became ill last week with a cold and a slight rheumatic condition affecting the left leg. He had planned to be up again this week and had hoped to resume the few public appearances and speaking engagements that he had accepted during his winter's stay here with his sister. Three days ago he suffered a relapse and was hurried from his hotel room to the hospital cottage in an ambulance. Still his condition was considered hopeful, and doctors thought that his heart strain could be improved by a prolonged rest in bed.

When the second relapse came Gen. Pershing fought it doggedly. Several times he rallied from the coma into semi-consciousness, but after the force of his will weakened, each time he seemed to sink deeper into unconsciousness.

Three doctors were in attendance. In addition to Dr. Davison, the general's personal physician, Lieut. Col. Shelly U. Marietta, army heart specialist from Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and Dr. Verne Mason, professor of clinical medicine at the University of Southern California, had speeded here by airplane to provide what aid they might for the commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary force in the World War.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25—(UP)—Charging that the state could have saved $82,500 a year on a liquor trucking contract, members of the senate graft investigating committee today prepared to ask Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy to take legal steps to void the existing contract.

Robert M. Shaw, president of Shaw Transport, Inc., testified before the committee late yesterday that his firm held a state liquor trucking contract which called for 17 cents on a case. He said the same contract was sub-let to the U. S. Trucking Lines for 11 1/2 cents a case.

John F. Nolan, Jefferson county Democratic leader, holds one-third of the stock in Shaw Transport, the committee was told.

Metcalf Takes Lead

Sen. Vermer E. Metcalf, Republican committee member and an attorney, said he would give Attorney General Duffy 30 days in which to file court action to vacate the trucking contract. If it is not done within that time, he will file suit as an individual, he said.

Shaw said he did not know why the state liquor department did not contract directly with U. S. Trucking Lines for 11 1/2 cents a case instead of paying his firm 17 cents. The committee said it would ask Liquor Director James W. Miller why the trucking contract was awarded to Shaw Transport.

The $82,500 figure was based on an estimated 1,500,000 cases handled in 1937 at 5 1/2 cents a case more than U. S. Trucking Lines is receiving for doing the actual hauling.

Sen. Metcalf pointed out that 1,000 persons could have received old age pensions for one year from the liquor profits if the $82,000 had not been spent. He said he would get an explanation of the contract "or know the reason why."

Shaw Transport was incorporated Jan. 15, 1937, and the next day was given the liquor department's trucking contract, the committee said. The contract previously had been held by U. S. Trucking Lines. Shaw Transport immediately sub-let the contract back to U. S. Trucking Lines.

Shaw testified that a dividend of about $70,000 will be divided soon among Bert Kemmerling, Cleveland automobile dealer; Nolan, and himself. Shaw said the total possible liability of the three stockholders is $3033. He said the three "put up" about $1000 to start the company.

Chillicothean Testifies

Emmet Moore, Chillicothe coal dealer, told the committee he had difficulty selling coal to the state and finally was given a note by State Purchasing Agent Glenn Horn telling him that "Mr. Goggin wants to see you."

Moore said he tried to see William Goggin, connected with Democratic state headquarters, but that Goggin was not in his office. His coal business with the state then fell off sharply, Moore stated.

Roy N. DeWeese, Columbus plumbing supply man, testified that he was solicited for contributions to Democratic state headquarters. He said his firm once was low bidder on some state work but did not get the contract.

Marshall Burns, bookkeeper for a Martins Ferry asphalt firm, testified that his firm made payments totaling $5,184.37 to C. E. Wild, connected with the Democratic state headquarters as "commissions" on road construction business the company got with the state.

Max J. Zeller, Columbus highway contractor, testified that he received a bill for $2000 from Wild after his firm built a road for the state highway department. He said he did not know Wild and did not pay the bill.

Pealer Testifying

The committee went into a secret session today to hear Major Winfield S. Pealer, former Columbus safety director, who testified briefly yesterday.

Pealer declined to reveal whether he ever had represented the Gallon Iron Works, and whether he had made payments to Democratic headquarters on machinery the company sold to the state.

Pealer said to answer those questions would violate the rights of his client.

Senate Votes Money For New T. V. A. Project Dam

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(UP)—Senate leaders predicted approval of the $1,400,000,000 independent offices appropriation bill today after approving $2,700,000 to start a new Tennessee valley authority dam and a cut in funds for the Home Owners Loan corporation.

Sen. Kenneth McKellar, D., Tenn., said that a check of senate sentiment convinced him that efforts to strike out the appropriation for Gilbertsville dam, part of the T.V.A. system, would fail.

Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, R., Mich., and Sen. John E. Miller, D., Ark., attacked the dam appropriation but for different reasons.

Vandenberg argued that the project was of doubtful value, that the cost was uncertain, and that it should be studied for another year.

Others to be Built Miller contended that the administration was spending so much on the T.V.A. that flood control in other sections of the country was being neglected. He said he had been encouraged as a result of the debate, however, to believe that his pending bill to construct 79 reservoirs in the Ohio, Missouri, White, Arkansas and Red river valleys for flood control would be approved.

A $3,000,000 reduction to $25,000,000 in funds for the H.O.L.C. appeared likely to go uncontested on the senate floor although an effort probably will be made later to reinstate the sum in conference with the house. The appropriation bill got over its biggest hurdle yesterday when the senate, by voice vote, defeated a committee amendment reducing funds of the National Labor Relations board $385,000. Sen. Carter Glass, D., Va., and Sen. Edward R. Burke, D., Neb., attacked the board after Glass had said that some of the committee members wanted to see it "abolished."

Sen. Elbert D. Thomas, D., Utah, Sen. M. M. Neely, D., W. Va., and Sen. Robert M. La Follette, P., Wis., defended the board and cited its vastly increased business as necessitating an increase in funds. On disposition of the independent offices bill the senate leadership will decide whether to take up other waiting appropriation bills or move on to the executive department reorganization bill, sponsored by Sen. James F. Byrnes, D., S. C.

For a suit the new and amusing buttonhole ornaments are the thing right now. ORIENT SCHOOL NEWS

We have been observing Washington's birthday in many ways. We made art structures from some of his boyhood stories. Many children gave interesting reports and also Miss Hill read us incidents concerning his life, character, and position in life. Our greatest way of observing his birthday is by the holiday we are receiving. A few weeks ago we recall the fact that we reported a week of perfect attendance and a few weeks of exceptionally good attendance. We are so sorry that that has been broken down by the epidemic of measles. The children have been suffering with both kinds of measles and many serious colds are also in our midst. Before this week there were eight students who had not been absent or tardy during this school term but now there are only three left on that list. Those three are Geneva, Lenora, and Billy Shoaf, who are sisters and brothers. They may be able to finish this term and others without illness! The eighth grade science class are studying weather factors. In Geography we are studying the possessions of the United States, which we find unusually interesting. The fifth grade English class have been writing letters, including both business and friendly types. Many students have written applications for various jobs. Some were quite valuable. 'MATH' RIVALRY AMONG COLLEGE TEAMS SPURRED

OBERLIN, O. (UP)—Intercollegiate mathematics rivalry is the latest college sport.

Instead of footballs or basketballs, the mathematical wizards will toss around calculus theories and geometrical figures in the competition announced by the Mathematical Association of America.

Prof. W. D. Cairne, secretary-treasurer of the association and head of the Oberlin College mathematics department, said the first "games" are scheduled for April. Chief competition is expected between individual scholars, but the association is encouraging participation of three-men teams from colleges and universities.

Unlike their colleagues on the gridiron and basketball court, the "math" experts will be rewarded in cash.

Each member of winning team will receive $50, $30, and $20, according to the team ranking. The highest five individual contestants will get $50 each.

In addition, mathematics departments of top ranking schools will be awarded $500 for first, $300 for second, and $200 for third.

Each year, one of the first five winners will be awarded the $1,000 William Lowell Putnam Prize scholarship to Harvard university.

Senate Votes Money For New T. V. A. Project Dam

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(UP)—Senate leaders predicted approval of the $1,400,000,000 independent offices appropriation bill today after approving $2,700,000 to start a new Tennessee valley authority dam and a cut in funds for the Home Owners Loan corporation.

Sen. Kenneth McKellar, D., Tenn., said that a check of senate sentiment convinced him that efforts to strike out the appropriation for Gilbertsville dam, part of the T.V.A. system, would fail.

Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, R., Mich., and Sen. John E. Miller, D., Ark., attacked the dam appropriation but for different reasons.

Sen. Elbert D. Thomas, D., Utah, Sen. M. M. Neely, D., W. Va., and Sen. Robert M. La Follette, P., Wis., defended the board and cited its vastly increased business as necessitating an increase in funds.

On disposition of the independent offices bill the senate leadership will decide whether to take up other waiting appropriation bills or move on to the executive department reorganization bill, sponsored by Sen. James F. Byrnes, D., S. C.

When we started home the rain had changed to snow and driving was bad. The snow had packed on the windshield and the roads were slippery. It was rather late when we got home but after all this we'll be glad to attend again next week.

KING'S FRIEND, WIFE VICTIMS OF AIR CRASH

Baron Plunket, 38, Member Of Irish Parliament, Burns In Wreckage

PILOT IS KILLED, TOO

Plane Misses Field Near Hearst Mansion

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., Feb. 25—(UP)—Two titled English guests and the pilot who was flying them to visit William Randolph Hearst in one of the publisher's airplanes died in a flaming crash in a fog on Hearst's San Simeon ranch near here.

The dead:

Baron Terrence Conyngham Plunket, 38, sixth baron of Plunket, member of the Irish parliament, and close friend of King George of England.

Lady Dorothea Mabel Plunket, 38, daughter of Fanny Ward, the actress, heiress to a $3,000,000 fortune, and a lady-in-waiting to Queen Elizabeth.

Pilot P. J. (Tex) Phillips, of Burbank, Cal., a motorcycle policeman who flew for Hearst in his spare time.

Third Guest Hurt

A third guest was seriously injured. James Lawrence, son of Sir Walter Lawrence, a London contractor, was burned and one of his ankles was fractured.

The plane overshot the private airport on the ranch yesterday afternoon and crashed about four miles from the big hilltop mansion where Hearst and other friends were waiting to welcome them. Guests rushed down the winding drives from the ranch to the wreck.

Phillips took off with his passengers from Union air terminal at Burbank about 3 p. m. in a single-motored Vultee plane owned by the San Francisco Examiner, one of the Hearst's newspapers. Near the end of the 150-mile flight he encountered a sea-coast fog and missed the ranch airport by about one mile. Too late, the pilot apparently discovered the error and turned back, but one wing scraped the ground as he banked through the fog. The big all-metal plane heeled over and burst into flames.

Roy Summers, postmaster at San Simeon, heard the crash and rushed to the wreckage. Lord and Lady Plunket were trapped in the blazing cabin. They apparently had been instantly killed. The pilot had been thrown a short distance from the plane but he was dead.

Lawrence was stumbling about, dazed. Summers pulled him away from the plane to prevent his blundering into the flames. He was badly burned and one of his ankles was broken in two places. At the San Luis Obispo sanitarium his condition was reported to be serious.

With Fairbanks

Lord and Lady Plunket arrived in the United States aboard the liner Normandie two weeks ago and flew to the Pacific coast to spend the winter near their friends, Douglas Fairbanks, the retired motion picture star, and his wife, the former Lady Ashley. They stayed for a time at Fairbanks' home in Santa Monica and then rented a Beverly Hills mansion from William Haines, former film actor. Haines is now in London.

Lord Plunket succeeded to his barony in 1920. The 111-year-old title now passes to his eldest son, Hon. Patrick Terence William Span Plunket, who is 15 years of age. In addition to the new baron, his child by a previous marriage, he leaves two other sons. Plunket was educated at Wellington and the Royal Military college at Sandhurst.

His American-born wife was Dorothea Mabel, daughter of the late Joseph Teurs, a Transvaal diamond magnate, and Fanny Ward, the actress known as the "perennial flapper." Miss Ward is in Palm Beach, Fla.

At 17 she married Captain Jack Barnato, who died a year later and left her a fortune of more than $3,000,000.

Pretty and vivacious, she was considered one of Europe's best dancers, and one of the best dressed women in London society.

The alliance of lightweight suede with wool, tweed and knitwear has been one of the highlights of the present season. Pockets and collar of a smart tan tweed suit are of harvest rust suede; jet black suede panels from top to bottom grace one of the smartest of black winter coats. Even for evening suede is in evidence, a blue suede bolero topping a slim black dinner dress.

Let's Have a Tea Party

Tea making is one of the simplest procedures in the beverage line. There are, however, important rules to follow to insure a resulting good cup of tea. Use fresh water to start the teakettle boiling. Then have the water at exactly the boiling point when it is poured on the tea. Allow the water to stand on the tea leaves, which have been measured to equal 1 tsp. tea for each person, until the tea has steeped for 4 or 5 minutes. The liquid tea should then be poured off the leaves, otherwise a stringy taste develops. Always have the tea in the pot first and pour the boiling water over it. Tea should be stored in an airtight container to prevent its deterioration. Old stock tea is flat and lifeless, so that however carefully water is boiled, if used with old tea it will not produce a palatable drink.

Now that we have reviewed the proper way to make a refreshing cup of tea, let's have some friends over one of these nice afternoons to join us at "tea-time."

Intimacies of two or three close friends are revived with a cordial cup of tea and light accompaniments. We may have tiny bread and butter sandwiches, cookies, or muffins to fill the tea time snack hunger. Here are recipes for any number of treats:

- Pineapple Corn Bread
- 1 1/2 C. flour
 - 4 tsp. baking powder
 - 1 tsp. salt
 - 1 C. yellow cornmeal
 - 2 Tbsp. sugar
 - 2 eggs
 - 1 1/2 C. milk
 - 4 Tbsp. melted shortening
 - 1/2 C. crushed pineapple, drained
 - 1/2 C. pineapple preserves

Sift flour add baking powder, salt, cornmeal and sugar and sift again. Beat eggs, add milk, shortening, and pineapple. Stir liquid ingredients into the first mixture, blending only enough to moisten the dry ingredients. Pour into a greased loaf pan (11"x4"x3") spread pineapple jam evenly on top, and allow to stand 10 to 20 minutes. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for about 40 minutes. Serve hot in buttered slices at tea time.

Glazed Fruit Tarts, satisfying morsels anytime, are especially tempting with your friendly cup of tea. Make them like this:

- Roll out pastry on a slightly floured board to 1/8 inch thickness. Cut with fluted cookie cutter 3-inch diameter. (1) Reserve some of these rounds for bottoms of tart shells. Remove centers of remaining rounds to form rings (2 and 3), with a smaller cutter, approximately 2 1/2 inches in diameter. Moisten around edge of shell bottoms and place 2 pastry rings on each, the first of which has also been moistened (see figure 4). Prick pastry with floured fork. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 to 15 minutes. Fill with fruit and cover tops with Apricot Glaze.

- Apricot Glaze
- Wash, soak, and cook 1/2 lb. dried apricots. Rub through a fine sieve. Blend 1/4 C. sugar and 1 Tbsp. cornstarch, add 1 C. water. Add to apricots, cook until thick and glossy.

- Today's Recipes
- French Glace Dates

One package pasteurized dates, one slice canned pineapple, one cup sugar, one cup white corn syrup, one-half cup water. Stuff the dates with a bit of pineapple, wrapping the date entirely around the filling. Cook the sugar, syrup and water until the syrup begins to discolor (310 degrees F.). Remove the pan from direct heat and place in a pan of hot water so that the syrup will not cool too rapidly. Place each date on a fork, dip into syrup; let drip a moment and then place on a greased pan or marble slab to harden. This amount makes about one and one-fourth pounds.

CIRCLEVILLE COCA-COLA BOTTLING WORKS

WATCHERS SPOT ILLEGAL BRANDS AT OMAHA PENS

OMAHA, Neb. (UP)—When "Wild Bill" Hickok and "Calamity Jane" were familiar figures on the plains of Nebraska, stock-raisers in the rolling ranges of this state stopped cattle-rustling with six-shooters. Today, they control the same kind of thievery with an identification system that matches FBI fingerprint records in completeness.

As the bleating, bellowing herds of Herefords shuttle down runways into stockyards pens, "brand spotters" station themselves along the wooden fences. They can spot illegal overbrands, or identify any of the thousands of markings on the state.

In the Omaha yards, the "spotters" represent cattlemen from Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Montana and South Dakota. They are paid by their respective state commissions or cattlemen's associations.

Should a deceptive brand pass through the inspection, or should any stolen or mortgaged livestock be sold, the owner can recover the sale price of the cattle through the livestock exchange.

Nearly all livestock transactions on the Omaha market—totaling $150,000,000 annually—are made by "word of mouth" agreements. But because of the highly developed exchange system, a board specially appointed to arbitrate claims rarely has a case to try.

One day he walked up to Doc Meier's soda fountain and took a stranger by the arm and said "You're under arrest for violatin' the 'Anti-noise Law'—you just drank a bi-carbonate of soda!"

The man says "Well, what of it? I ain't made a noise yet!"

Sunday School Class Honors Mrs. Harbaugh

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Ashville, Phone 79

Mrs. H. O. Harbaugh's Sunday school class, Number Ten, of the Methodist church honored their past teacher, Mrs. Carrie Fridley, at a dinner in the church Sunday school room. About seventy were present among whom were several long time friends who came to enjoy the evening with Mrs. Fridley. Mrs. Hosler sang "God Will Take Care of You" and the class sang "Happy Birthday." The honoree is 87 years of age and for years taught this Number Ten class which annually celebrates her birthday.

A birthday cake was in evidence as a part of the banquet served. She received many useful gifts.

Fred Hines Returns

Fred Hines, assistant cashier at the Citizens Bank, with his family, (wife and two children) are coming back home to Ashville, having purchased from Mayor E. E. Fraunfelter his dwelling on Powell street. He retains his Fairfield county farm of 90 acres and will continue to operate same through a tenant arrangement. The large dwelling in which he lived, and a small part of the farm, has been rented to a retired Methodist minister. Wendell Canter and family, who now occupy the Fraunfelter property, will move soon as a location can be found.

'IN-LAWS' DAY CREDITED BACK TO GENE HOWE

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—The inspiration for "Mother-in-law Day"—Mrs. W. F. Donald of Amarillo—is willing to give all the credit to her son-in-law, Gene Howe, publisher of the Amarillo News-Globe.

Howe will sponsor the third annual "Mother-in-law Day" next March 5, with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as guest of honor. Because Mrs. Roosevelt's schedule may prevent her appearance in Amarillo on that date, the festivities may be delayed a day or two, Mrs. Donald said.

"Gene never did anything to offend me in his life," said Mrs. Donald, on a visit here. "I've lived with the Howes for 14 years, and he's the finest son-in-law anywhere."

The annual celebration started, according to reports, when Howe returned home to find his mother-in-law in tears because of a remark about mothers-in-law in his daily column, "The Tactless Texan." Mrs. Donald denied that report, but said a patron of the weather man is expected to hand us most everything and anything all in one day. But even at that the boys may win.

newspaper had complained that Howe's mother-in-law jokes were too pointed.

"That seems to be the general idea of how this got started," she said. But if you knew Gene you would understand how absurd that is. He never did anything to offend me in his life."

Mrs. Donald, 70, declared that her main interest now is young people—and particularly her two grandchildren. She teaches a young people's Sunday school class in Amarillo.

Farmers in the United States, on a basis of business done with the national farm credit administration, continued to improve their economic position in 1937. Fewer mortgage loans were made and more payments were made on mortgages outstanding than during 1936.

In addition to the new baron, his child by a previous marriage, he leaves two other sons. Plunket was educated at Wellington and the Royal Military college at Sandhurst.

His American-born wife was Dorothea Mabel, daughter of the late Joseph Teurs, a Transvaal diamond magnate, and Fanny Ward, the actress known as the "perennial flapper." Miss Ward is in Palm Beach, Fla.

At 17 she married Captain Jack Barnato, who died a year later and left her a fortune of more than $3,000,000.

Pretty and vivacious, she was considered one of Europe's best dancers, and one of the best dressed women in London society.

CIRCLEVILLE COCA-COLA BOTTLING WORKS

WATCHERS SPOT ILLEGAL BRANDS AT OMAHA PENS

OMAHA, Neb. (UP)—When "Wild Bill" Hickok and "Calamity Jane" were familiar figures on the plains of Nebraska, stock-raisers in the rolling ranges of this state stopped cattle-rustling with six-shooters. Today, they control the same kind of thievery with an identification system that matches FBI fingerprint records in completeness.

As the bleating, bellowing herds of Herefords shuttle down runways into stockyards pens, "brand spotters" station themselves along the wooden fences. They can spot illegal overbrands, or identify any of the thousand markings from the state.

In the Omaha yards, the "spotters" represent cattlemen from Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Montana and South Dakota. They are paid by their respective state commissions or cattlemen's associations.

Should a deceptive brand pass through the inspection, or should any stolen or mortgaged livestock be sold, the owner can recover the sale price of the cattle through the livestock exchange.

Nearly all livestock transactions on the Omaha market — totaling $150,000,000 annually — are made by "word of mouth" agreements. But because of the highly developed exchange system, a board specially appointed to arbitrate claims rarely has a case to try.

It don't take a very smart policeman to detect crime after it's been committed. There wouldn't be near as much law-breakin' in this country if all officers could anticipate crime and stop it before it started like Grandpa Snazzy when he was Chief of Police down home.

One day he walked up to Doc Meier's soda fountain and took a stranger by the arm and said "You're under arrest for violatin' the 'Anti-noise Law'—you just drank a bi-carbonate of soda!" The man says "Well, what of it? I ain't made a noise yet!"

Grandpa says "No, but you will in a minute! Let's go."

Sunday School Class Honors Mrs. Harbaugh

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Ashville, Phone 79

Mrs. H. O. Harbaugh's Sunday school class, Number Ten, of the Methodist church honored their past teacher, Mrs. Carrie Fridley, at a dinner in the church Sunday school room. About seventy were present among whom were several long time friends who came to enjoy the evening with Mrs. Fridley. Mrs. Hostler sang "God Will Take Care of You" and the class sang "Happy Birthday." The honoree is 87 years of age and for years taught this Number Ten class which annually celebrates her birthday.

A birthday cake was in evidence as a part of the banquet served. She received many useful gifts.

Fred Hines Returns

Fred Hines, assistant cashier at the Citizens Bank, with his family, (wife and two children) are coming back home to Ashville, having purchased from Mayor E. E. Fraunfelder his dwelling on Powell street. He retains his Fairfield county farm of 90 acres and will continue to operate same through a tenant arrangement. The large dwelling in which he lived, and a small part of the farm, has been rented to a retired Methodist minister. Wendell Canter and family, who now occupy the Fraunfelder property, will move soon as a location can be found.

'IN-LAWS' DAY CREDITED BACK TO GENE HOWE

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—The inspiration for "Mother-in-law Day"—Mrs. W. F. Donald of Amarillo—is willing to give all the credit to her son-in-law, Gene Howe, publisher of the Amarillo News-Globe.

Howe will sponsor the third annual "Mother-in-law Day" next March 5, with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as guest of honor. Because Mrs. Roosevelt's schedule may prevent her appearance in Amarillo on that date, the festivities may be delayed a day or two, Mrs. Donald said.

"Gene never did anything to offend me in his life," said Mrs. Donald, on a visit here. "I've lived with the Howes for 14 years, and he's the finest son-in-law anywhere."

The annual celebration started, according to reports, when Howe returned home to find his mother-in-law in tears because of a remark about mothers-in-law in his daily column, "The Tactless Texan." Mrs. Donald denied that report, but said a patron of the weather man is expected to hand us most everything and anything all in one day. But even at that the boys may win.

newspaper had complained that Howe's mother-in-law jokes were too pointed.

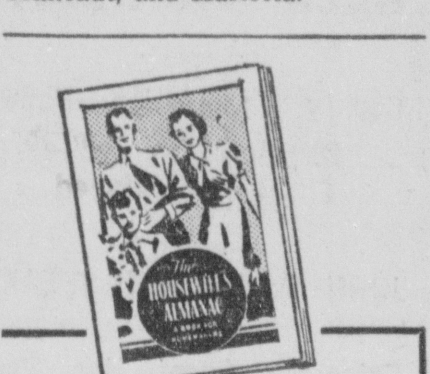

"That seems to be the general idea of how this got started," she said. But if you knew Gene you would understand how absurd that is. He never did anything to offend me in his life."

Mrs. Donald, 70, declared that her main interest now is young people—and particularly her two grandchildren. She teaches a young people's Sunday school class in Amarillo.

Farmers in the United States, on a basis of business done with the national farm credit administration, continued to improve their economic position in 1937. Fewer mortgage loans were made and more payments were made on mortgages outstanding than during 1936.

C.I.O. TO OPEN STATE MEETING IN COLUMBUS

Constitution To Be Formed During Two-Day Confab; Davey To Be Played

ELECTION IS EYED

Owens, Chairman, May Run For Governor

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 (UP)—The first state convention of the Committee for Industrial Organization in Ohio, opening here tomorrow, will develop a closely knit state body of all local affiliates united in support of C.I.O. political and social demands, spokesmen said today.

A pre-convention conference of approximately 50 leaders was held in advance to prepare committee reports, delegates' assignments and resolutions and to discuss terms of the state C.I.O. constitution to be promulgated during the two-day meeting.

Arrangements were made to accommodate 1,000 delegates. One C.I.O. executive said the delegates would represent a total state membership of 250,000 workers, but others said there was no accurate estimate available of the C.I.O. numerical strength in Ohio.

The convention was expected to draft for the first time since the organization's founding a broad political and legislative platform for Ohio units.

A spokesman indicated that political issues may attract the greatest attention by the convention. He explained that one resolution to be proposed would condemn Gov. Martin L. Davey "in very positive terms." It was understood that several other resolutions attacking the governor had been drafted.

Other proposals urging all C.I.O. workers to register to vote in the 1938 general election and to participate actively in Labor's Non-Partisan League, also will be submitted. The league is headed by John L. Lewis, national C.I.O. chieftain. It was predicted that the three resolutions would be adopted without dissent.

Officials suggested there was a strong probability that John Owens, Cambridge, district president of the United Mine Workers and now C.I.O. Ohio regional director, would be unanimously elected as the first state president. They declined to discuss possibilities for other state officers.

Owens has publicly acknowledged that he was considering entering the race for governor of Ohio and speculation was aroused whether his friends might attempt to use the convention platform as a sounding board for him. Owens, however, said he did not want that issue intruded.

Questions and Answers

What makes cheese get stringy when melted?

When too much heat is applied in melting cheese, it will become stringy. Always use a low temperature for heating cheese. A good way to make cheese sauce is to melt the cheese fine and heat it slowly in a sauce made of butter, flour and milk, and stir it while it is melting. If you use a double boiler, the chances of stringiness will be reduced.

Is it the fault of the cake or the frosting when the frosting soaks into the cake and becomes moist and gummy between the layers?

If the cake or the frosting is warm when the frosting is applied, the cake will tend to absorb the moisture. If the cake and frosting are cold, or nearly so, the frosting won't soak in. Next time, try waiting until the cake cools before frosting it.

Why is the milk for custards sometimes scalded before adding the egg?

If the custard is to be baked, the time of baking will be reduced almost one-half, when the milk is scalded before combining with the egg.

Is it faulty method that makes gelatin stay watery? How long should it take gelatin to set?

To solidify gelatin requires a low temperature. It will not stiffen at room temperatures. To get the greatest bulk from the gelatin used, soak it in cold water, before adding the boiling water for dissolving it. Use the quantity of water called for on the package, but use part of the water cold, and soak the gelatin first. When completely dissolved put the mixture in a very cold place to set. Keep the gelatin chilled until time of serving to prevent its melting. Usually allow several hours for the gelatin to set. By placing in a very cold refrigerator it will be firm in about one hour.

What amounts of raw cereals should be cooked to yield the following: 1 C. rice? 1 C. spaghetti? 1 C. macaroni?

Rice swells or expands to three times its original measure in cooking. One cup of rice in cooking swells to 3 C, or more, so, to have a resulting 1 C. of cooked rice, start out with 1/3 C. of uncooked rice, and 2/3 to 3 C. water for boiling rice. The amount of water used will depend on the method of cooking employed. For spaghetti and macaroni, the expansion by measure is also large, since 1 lb. measures 5 C. uncooked and equals 12 C. cooked. To have just 1 C. of cooked macaroni or spaghetti only 1 1/2 oz. or a little less than 1/2 C. is needed.

What causes my enamel pans, sink, tabletop, and range to show spots? They look dull and grey.

Enamelled surfaces are affected by the action of fruit acids and milk and care should be taken to remove any traces of these staining agents from the sensitive surfaces. Acids "etch" or lightly dull the glossy luster of enameled tops when the acids are allowed to remain in contact for any length of time. When working with fruit juices, tomato juice or milk or cocoa mixtures keep the work surfaces immaculately clean so that ingredients will be noticed and can be wiped up immediately. After the acids have dulled the enamel there is no remedy for the mishap and dust and dirt will accumulate and show in the stains.

Police Department Graft Brings Heavy Sentences In One Midwestern City

Captain Michael Harwood Captain Louis Cadek

Sergeant James Price Dept. Insp. Edwin Burns Lieutenant John Nebe

These five Cleveland police officers have been convicted of accepting bribes from bootleggers in the prohibition era. Four more policemen are awaiting trial.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 25 — One police captain already in the penitentiary, three others officers under prison sentence, and another convicted and awaiting sentence—that is the score to date in Cleveland's war against police grafters.

In addition, four more policemen, one of them a lieutenant, are awaiting trial on charges of accepting bribes from bootleggers of the prohibition period.

Charles J. McNamee, acting prosecutor here in the absence of Prosecutor Frank T. Cullinan, now recovering from serious auto accident injuries, has begun preparation for the trials of the four remaining policemen accused of extorting protection money from law violators.

Legal experts believe that Cullinan, McNamee, and their staff have accomplished some sort of record with the five convictions to date. It is pointed out that in many cities where similar drives were begun, acquittals were frequent and many indictments were quashed.

But not so in Cleveland. Late in 1936, eight officers were indicted on the bribe charges, as the outgrowth of an intensive investigation conducted by 35-year-old Safety Director Eliot Ness, former G-man. Earlier in 1936, Police Captain Louis J. Cadek was convicted on graft charges, and now is in Ohio penitentiary serving a two-to-20-year term.

First of the eight men indicted at one time to come to trial was vigorous, clean police administrator, McNamee, and their staff

Owens, Chairman, May Run For Governor

COLUMBUS, Feb. 25 —(UP)—The first state convention of the Committee for Industrial Organization in Ohio, opening here tomorrow, will develop a closely knit state body of all local affiliates united in support of C.I.O. political and social demands, spokesmen said today.

A pre-convention conference of approximately 50 leaders was held in advance to prepare committee reports, delegates' assignments and resolutions and to discuss terms of the state C.I.O. constitution to be promulgated during the two-day meeting.

Arrangements were made to accommodate 1,000 delegates. One C.I.O. executive said the delegates would represent a total state membership of 250,000 workers, but others said there was no accurate estimate available of the C.I.O. numerical strength in Ohio.

The convention was expected to draft for the first time since the organization's founding a broad political and legislative platform for Ohio units.

A spokesman indicated that political issues may attract the greatest attention by the convention. He explained that one resolution to be proposed would condemn Gov. Martin L. Davey "in very positive terms." It was understood that several other resolutions attacking the governor had been drafted.

Other proposals urging all C.I.O. workers to register to vote in the 1938 general election and to participate actively in Labor's Non-Partisan League, also will be submitted. The league is headed by John L. Lewis, national C.I.O. chieftain. It was predicted that the three resolutions would be adopted without dissent.

Officials suggested there was a strong probability that John Owens, Cambridge, district president of the United Mine Workers and now C.I.O. Ohio regional director, would be unanimously elected as the first state president. They declined to discuss possibilities for other state offices.

Owens has publicly acknowledged that he was considering entering the race for governor of Ohio and speculation was aroused whether his friends might attempt to use the convention platform as a sounding board for him. Owens, however, said he did not want that issue intruded.

Questions and Answers

What makes cheese get stringy when melted?

When too much heat is applied in melting cheese, it will become stringy. Always use a low temperature for heating cheese. A good way to make cheese sauce is to chop the cheese fine, and heat it slowly in a sauce made of butter, flour and milk, and stir it while it is melting. If you use a double boiler, the chances of stringiness will be reduced.

Is it the fault of the cake or the frosting when the frosting soaks into the cake and becomes moist and gummy between the layers?

If the cake or the frosting is warm when the frosting is applied, the cake will tend to absorb the moisture. If the cake and frosting are cold, or nearly so, the frosting won't soak in. Next time, try waiting until the cake cools before frosting it.

Why is the milk for custards sometimes scalded before adding the egg?

If the custard is to be baked, the time of baking will be reduced almost one-half, when the milk is scalded before combining with the egg.

Is it faulty method that makes gelatin stay watery? How long should it take gelatin to set?

To solidify gelatin requires a low temperature. It will not stiffen at room temperature. To get the greatest bulk from the gelatin used, soak it in cold water, before adding the boiling water for dissolving it. Use the quantity of water called for on the package, but use part of the water cold, and soak the gelatin first. When completely dissolved put the mixture in a very cold place to set. Keep the gelatin chilled until time of serving to prevent its melting. Usually allow several hours for the gelatin to set. By placing in a very cold refrigerator it will be firm in about one hour.

What amounts of raw cereals should be cooked to yield the following: 1 C. rice? 1 C. spaghetti? 1 C. macaroni?

Rice swells or expands to three times its original measure in cooking. One cup of rice in cooking swells to 3 C., or more, so, to have a resulting 1 C. of cooked rice, start out with 1/3 C. of uncooked rice, and 2/3 to 3 C. water for boiled rice. The amount of water used will depend on the method of cooking employed. For spaghetti and macaroni, the expansion by measure is also large, since 1 lb. measure 5 C. uncooked and equals 12 C. cooked. To have just 1 C. of cooked macaroni or spaghetti only 1 1/4 oz. or a little less than 1/2 C. is needed.

What causes my enamel pans, sink, tabletop and range to show spots? They look dull and grey.

Enameled surfaces are affected by the action of fruit acids and milk and care should be taken to remove any traces of these staining agents from the sensitive surfaces. Acids "etch" or lightly dull the glossy luster of enameled tops when the acids are allowed to remain in contact for any length of time. When working with fruit juices, tomato juice or milk or cocoa mixtures keep the work surfaces immaculately clean so the ingredients will be noticed and can be wiped up immediately. After the acids have dulled the enamel there is no remedy for the mishap and dust and dirt will accumulate and show in the stains.

Mrs. Sarah Brandhorst, of 117 Main St., Hamilton, Ohio, says: "Vendol gave me such easy thorough cleansing and invigorating action that I feel like a different person from what I did a few weeks ago. Police Department Graft Brings Heavy Sentences In One Midwestern City

Sergeant James Price Dept. Insp. Edwin Burns Lieutenant John Nebe

These five Cleveland police officers have been convicted of accepting bribes from bootleggers in the prohibition era. Four more policemen are awaiting trial.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 25 — One police captain already in the penitentiary, three others officers under prison sentence, and another convicted and awaiting sentence—that is the score to date in Cleveland's war against police grafters.

In addition, four more policemen, one of them a lieutenant, are awaiting trial on charges of accepting bribes from bootleggers of the prohibition period.

Charles J. McNamee, acting prosecutor here in the absence of Prosecutor Frank T. Cullinan, now recovering from serious auto accident injuries, has begun preparation for the trials of the four remaining policemen accused of extorting protection money from law violators.

Legal experts believe that Cullinan, McNamee, and their staff have accomplished some sort of record with the five convictions to date. It is pointed out that in many cities where similar drives were begun, acquittals were frequent and many indictments were quashed.

But not so in Cleveland. Late in 1936, eight officers were indicted on the bribe charges, as the outgrowth of an intensive investigation conducted by 35-year-old Safety Director Eliot Ness, former G-man. Earlier in 1936, Police Captain Louis J. Cadek was convicted on graft charges, and now is in Ohio penitentiary serving a two-to-20-year term.

First of the eight men indicted at one time to come to trial was vigorous, clean police administra-

TO SCOUT OFFICIALS

FOLK: The success of the Court of Honor conducted Wednesday evening in the high school auditorium should be an incentive to you to carry on the work that now seems firmly established in Circleville and Pickaway county. Circleville's troops, under able leadership, are more active than they have been for many years; county organizations are gaining in membership and interest, and, it is pleasing to note, Commercial Point is at last to have a troop. Many boys in the Scioto township village want to belong to the Boy Scouts as they do in many other county towns, but their elders have not been interested enough to get behind a troop organization. Congratulations should go to Scoutmaster Jack Landrum and his Troop 158 boys who had a 100 percent promotion record at the Court, to Scoutmaster Ervin Leist and his 107 lads who have made rapid forward strides in recent months. The Boy Scout organization can be no stronger than the troop committees that support it. The need for scouters, fathers of youths who want to be Scouts, is imperative, and I hope sincerely that the Court of Honor will help to interest men to take leading roles in the movement, which has done more and will continue to do more to make good Americans than any other organization in the United States.

TO HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT

OFFICIALS: Some time ago an announcement was made that a traffic signal would be installed at the intersection of Routes 22 and 104, west of Circleville. To date no steps have been taken. It is folly to delay this installation. You probably think Circleville residents and Pickaway countians have a pet peeve concerning that intersection. If you gentlemen lived in this community and knew the history of that intersection you would waste no time getting that light up as quickly as possible.

CIRCUITEER.

TO PEACE OFFICERS

FRIENDS: Reorganization programs for school patrols, similar to the one recently held in Williamsport, are a splendid means of creating renewed interest in this important phase of safety work among children. Pep meetings of this type are needed occasionally to refreshen in the mind of the youngsters the great importance of the patrol system and to explain regulations that should be strictly followed for proper operation of the system. These meetings should be continued at all schools having patrols. I notice the patrols at some of the city schools are not functioning properly. This condition should be corrected. If the junior patrolmen do not do their work correctly there is serious danger of accidents. If patrols are operated they should be operated correctly and not in such a manner as to confuse motorists. The time spent by officers in instructing school children in highway safety is time well spent.

CIRCUITEER.

TO FIREFIGHTERS

VOLUNTEERS: The hundreds of persons who witnessed the fire at Darbyville are high in their praise of the Williamsport volunteer department and members of the bucket brigade who provided the water necessary to prevent the spread of the flames. The fire might have had a more serious outcome had not the firefighters performed quick and capable services. The Williamsport unit, directed by C. E. Hill, has done much splendid work in recent years. More power to the organization.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MUSIC LOVERS

FRIENDS: Those of you who enjoy good vocal music should not fail to visit the Lutheran church Sunday evening when the male chorus of Capital university appears in concert. The chorus is classed as one of the finest in the nation, it has won state championships, and has appeared in numerous outstanding performances. Wilbur E. Crist, the chorus director, has welded a compact organization that is about as near perfection as any musical unit could be. In addition to the choral numbers, the group offers solos and quartet features that will prove interesting. Persons responsible for bringing the chorus to Circleville should be congratulated.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CIRCLEVILLE MINISTERS

PASTORS: Your plan to have a combined Easter program for Circleville churches in Memorial hall is one of the finest activities ever developed by your organization. It is certain to be an outstanding success. Circleville churches may be proud of their fine choirs. By combining them for a big Easter program our churchgoers are assured one of the greatest treats ever offered in this city. I hope all churches give the activity their fullest co-operation and the affair becomes an annual event.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SPORTSMEN

FRIENDS: I hope the result of the Pickaway township fox drive this week does not discourage other communities from sponsoring these campaigns. Weather conditions were responsible for its failure. Fox drives are needed in this district. Rural residents report there are too many foxes. Every effort has been made this Winter to stock the county with a good supply of rabbits. If foxes are not controlled these restocking efforts are useless. The state conservation department has been exceedingly generous to Pickaway county in providing game. Sportsmen should see that this game is properly protected and given a fair chance to increase. Farmers are well acquainted with the work of foxes on their chickens.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Not more than two or three months ago President Roosevelt gave it out at one of his press conferences that prices were too high. There ought, he said, to be quite a general reduction, to enable folk to do more buying, thus stimulating business.

He added, however, that wages should not be cut, or price reductions would be nullified; business would NOT be stimulated.

That was clear enough reasoning.

The point which business raised was that few industries are making sufficient profits to cut prices, except at the expense of wage cuts, without going bankrupt.

BUSINESS PERTURBED

I am not convinced of business' absolute truthfulness; I suspect that sometimes its profits are larger than it cares to own up to.

Nevertheless, such was its argument, and it was considerably perturbed by the presidential suggestion. It was additionally confused, due to the fact that the administration's previous policy had favored price boosts. Higher prices were the object of dollar devaluation and gold sterilization.

And an advance DID follow. Well, assume that it overdid itself, and that the president decided there ought to be a reduction again.

NOW—PRICES TOO LOW!

There might be some logic in THAT line of cerebration.

But the other day "F. D." had another press conference in the course of which he alleged that prices are too low; they should be re-boostered. And gold's partial DE-sterilization is restored to, as a move in this direction.

The administration clarified this seeming contradiction by saying that SOME prices are too low, some too high.

In his most recent statement, the president said the administration's economic policies were being directed toward a balancing of various commodity prices so that national income could be restored. I am not a businessman, but if I were one I'd bet I'd be confused by these various statements.

UNCERTAINTY WORRIES

During the recent little businessmen's Washington conference I was talking with a group of these peewees from out in the sticks (and some of them were businessmen whose interests run up into the small millions).

One of them complained bitterly of the current administration's eccentricities, as he termed them. "Yeah," quoth the second one,

"but next time we may have John L. Lewis as president. How'll you like that?"

"I'm anti-John L. Lewis," rejoined No. 1, "but I know where he stands, anyway. If he were president I could shape my program four years ahead, with plenty of certainty. I wouldn't like it, but I'd know what to count on. How can I gamble on anything, with the whole prospect changing month by month, if not week by week, or day by day?"

TWO GROUPS CLASH

Said a third: "We have two sets of prices: '1. The big utilities, whose prices are fixed by the government, gas, water, power, street cars, gas and the like.

"2. Our little, more or less small-town businesses—retail. "When we try for price and wage readjustments these big, regulated industries and our little, competitive business' interests clash."

Big business is formidable, but little business, collectively, is formidable also. What it needs is organization. And little business is democratic. The workman can become a small businessman—and a big businessman later, mayhap.

How Shock Treatment Is Used for Mental Ill

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
EVERY SO OFTEN we hear of a new remedy for that very common and troublesome skin disease, psoriasis. One gets a little skeptical because the successful treatment of psoriasis is so difficult, but, as the Journal of the American Medical Association says, the recent report of Cedar and Zon is arresting for that very reason.

Dr. Clendening

Treatment is by the use of large doses of Vitamin D. It is quite probable that in many instances our bodily supply of Vitamin D becomes very low. We know from experience with children on the verge of rickets that it is very difficult to keep it high. The dosage of Vitamin D used in this treatment is tremendous, as much as 30,000 units a day.

The first case in which it was used was a case of chronic arthritis in which Vitamin D was given in large doses. The patient incidentally had a psoriasis which cleared up a good deal more promptly than the arthritis. It was tried after this in 15 cases. Eleven of these patients had complete disappearance of the skin eruption within six to twelve weeks. The psoriasis recurred gradually in two or three months in all but four of the recovered patients. However, the recurring eruptions were not as severe as the original ones, and one case in which the treatment was twice repeated over an eight to ten-week period obtained complete disappearance again.

Great Care Needed

Great care had to be exercised in order to prevent a dangerous increase in the amount of Vitamin D in the body. Vitamin D, as is known, is capable of increasing the calcium in the blood, so careful studies were carried out in connection with the administration to see that the blood calcium was not greatly increased. No harm, however, appeared to be done in patients by these large doses, and patients who are badly troubled with chronic widespread psoriasis, who can find a physician to co-operate with them, might get considerable benefit from such a treatment.

The treatment is described in Public Health Reports for Nov. 5, 1937.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Judicious and Constitution," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER 37

"WHAT WERE the old man's last words?" asked Mgr. Smith, who seemed to be enjoying the medieval story Dr. Tate was telling.

"The son raised his father's head, and the old man nodded to the window, or porthole, or whatever they had in castles then. 'Death came on wings!' he whispered, and then expired."

"And how had he died?"
"That is the interesting part of the story," said Dr. Tate. "It was never known how he died. There had been a sentry at the foot of the stairs all the time the old man was up in his tower, and a thorough search was made of the whole building without any success. The room in which he was found was 30 feet from the ground, and no weapon was discovered. So the people in the house, being as I said, superstitious."

"Oh, they were all superstitious. You did not tell us that."

"Well, what can you expect they were in those dark ages? Anyhow, they believed of course that the vision of the old man had come to pass, and the Angel of Death had struck him at last."

"I see. So his murderer was never discovered?"

"No. What do you think of the story?"

"I think that like many good stories it is a lie."

"Oh."

"But you are quite right in thinking that I should be interested in the story. Is it well known about here?"

"Very. It would be difficult for anyone to live in the parish long without hearing it. Why, I believe that our crazy vicar even used it in one of his sermons the other day. Sort of warning to people who misbehaved themselves. But then he's an unaccountable chap. Well, I turn in here. Little girl with whooping cough. I hope you clear up this rather more urgent mystery of ours. Terrible business. I'm not an advocate of capital punishment myself, but I think that the man who killed Mary Thurston ought to be hanged. Good night to you both. Good night."

Dr. Tate turned into a narrow drive and left us to complete our walk alone. I was thinking quickly. Something in the story had caught my imagination. The idea of death coming on wings. The mystery of Mary Thurston's death was to me so baffling that nothing seemed too far-fetched. Suppose—of course I knew it was fantastic—but suppose that someone could fly like that? Even if it was only from a first-floor window to a point on the ground far enough away from the walls to leave no sign of landing. Was it, after all, so impossible? I remembered, as a boy, experimenting in jumps from the roof of a shed with an open umbrella in my hand to break the fall. The experiment had not been very successful, but still—

After all, it was not as though the murderer would have had to fly in at the window. It was only out of it. Surely some contrivance, perhaps in the nature of a parachute, would have been possible. Or wings of some kind. There were such things as gliders. Was I really a fool to wonder about such possibilities?

I turned to my companion. "Don't you think that perhaps this story of murder might be relevant to our problem?"

"Any story of murder might be relevant to our problem," he replied, "from the story of Cain and Abel onwards."

"But isn't it conceivable that something of the sort might have happened here?"

Mgr. Smith turned to me. "It is hard enough to find what actually did happen without looking for all the things that might have happened. A dragon might have flown down in at the window and with his tongue which is a sword have done the deed. A newly invented balloon might have hung over the house like a cloud and lowered the murderer to the window. A man might have made a miraculous leap to the window-sill, and afterwards have projected himself into the boughs of a neighboring tree. Or I might have been hiding all the evening under the bed, and have changed myself into a rat on your approach. Yet it is not very helpful either for me or for Dr. Tate to invent these sensational hypotheses."

"You do know then, I said with some relief, 'what really did happen, and who is guilty?'"

I was waiting breathlessly for his answer when he suddenly caught my arm, and we stopped. There was a slope of the downs above us, and its outline was as smooth and distinct as that of a dome. There was a clump of trees bent by many years of wind, and maintaining their distracted lives in spite of it. I caught their shape and the edge of the hill to this day, for there was one detail in that silhouette which made it memorable to me.

It was such a detail as my companion liked, and of the kind to which he was accustomed. Black against the oyster-blue sky of dusk were two figures, a tall and a shorter one. It was not only their position against the sky which made them look black, their clothes were black, too, and there was something fluttering about the smaller one. I started. What were those limply flapping things at the man's side, which hung now close against his now rising flippantly in the breeze? Could they be—

But in a moment I told myself not to be a fool. There was nothing unnatural about the man's outline. Its flapping appearance was produced by a black Inverness cape, and having realized that, I knew that it was the vicar.

Mgr. Smith blinked in the bland and innocent way which I knew concealed his most intelligent discoveries. He watched the two coming down the hill toward the Thurstons' house, holding the crook of his umbrella with both hands. I was bewildered. This morning I had, in company with Lord Simon, seen three of the suspects, and he had told me that his theory was complete. This afternoon, on my walk with M. Picon, I had observed three more, and he, too, had solved the riddle. And now, in this maddening moment, here was Mgr. Smith, blinking in his unmistakably ominous way at the remaining two. (For the other figure was recognizable by now as that of Stall.) So that really, after mooting 80 miles or so, walking eight, and standing in a chilly breeze staring at the outline of the downs, I was no nearer to the truth than I had been last night.

I scarcely needed to repeat my question to Mgr. Smith when he at last walked on. "You do know then?" I almost whispered. "Yes," he said, "I know."

Once more we were in the library—Williams, Lord Simon, M.

Picon, Mgr. Smith, Sergeant Beef and I. Dr. Thurston had offered to come, but the investigators had agreed that since all the details were now to be revealed, it would be too painful for him. Nor was his presence necessary. He would hear of the arrest later.

I do not exaggerate when I say that my excitement was terrific, and I have no doubt that Williams was just as expectant. It was not merely that the mystery was to be elucidated, but that a human being was to be sent to a certain death—for with three such detectives to find evidence, surely no counsel in the world would be able to exonerate him. And this may have made our interest a morbid one, but it naturally gave real point and drama to the proceedings. Someone was to be named, arrested, tried and hanged—someone we knew, someone we had conversed with today. I looked down at my hand and saw that it was slightly trembling. Just as Lord Simon had been the first to interrogate each of the witnesses, he began speaking now. "I may as well outline this unfortunate affair," he said, "and then my colleagues can amplify or correct any of the details. How would that do?"

M. Picon nodded, and Mgr. Smith did not dissent, so Lord Simon began to talk. There was a silence almost uncanny in the room as he drew out the circumstances.

"Interesting" case," he said, "but not quite as baffling as it looked at first. However, it has kept us guessing for a time, so let's give it its due. Clearin' up most crimes is as simple as shellin' bally peas. This certainly wasn't that."

"First of all we must go back a little way. Remember that will? Unfortunate sort of document, when you come to think of it. Mrs. Thurston's first husband had a bigish fortune. And between that fortune and the son who felt a right to it he set only one barrier—a woman's life. There you have the foundation of the whole story. Conventional enough in essence. Motive, as usual, money."

"The stepson you remember was abroad when that will was made, and may or may not have heard of his father's death. We know from Thurston that he was the type of chap who was always turning up without a bob, to rest on his laurels and the family honor for a spell, so that his coming home may have been just the customary sort of thing. But in the meantime he had changed his name. You know how these things happen? Half a dozen creditors, some little eccentricity in the way in which a check was drawn—something a trifle shady. So stepson arrives with a brand-new name, an empty pocket, and a lot of curiosity. Still conventional, you see."

"And the very first news that falls on his flappers is that his old man has kicked the bucket, and his stepmother has married again. Well, well, thinks stepson, and pops off down to his father's solicitor to ask about the will. Unpleasant set-back. Interest left to the wife for lifetime; and only his measly allowance to go on with. He had never seen Mrs. Thurston, you remember, so that not even knowing her as the good-natured soul she was, he set about cursing roundly at scheming females who nipped in to pinch his birthright. He was a very furious young man."

150 Attend D. U. V. Tea Held in Memorial Hall

Ritual, Address

In Event

One hundred and fifty guests attended the Washington Tea, Thursday afternoon, given by the Daughters of Union Veterans in the Post room of Memorial Hall. Decorations appropriate to the patriotic affair were used in the room. This was one of the most outstanding affairs sponsored by the D. U. V. The guests were received by Mrs. J. S. Neuding, Miss Emily Yates, Mrs. Lucy B. Price, Mrs. George Hammel, Mrs. Hattie Pickens and Miss Daisy Murray.

The ritualistic opening of the meeting was directed by Mrs. James Trimmer, president. The color bearers escorted Mrs. Pickens, dressed as George Washington, and Miss Mary Haines, as Martha Washington, to their respective places, and the salute to the flag followed. After group singing of America, Mrs. Trimmer turned the meeting over to Mrs. James Carpenter, who presented the program.

Mrs. Beatrice Vogel, of Chillicothe, department patriotic instructor, was guest speaker. She gave an interesting address on "Patriotism."

A trio comprised of Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mrs. James Moffitt sang "In My Garden," by Firestone-Riegger, "Praising By," by Purcell and "Goodnight, Goodnight, Beloved," by Piniuit, accompanied at the piano by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer recited Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Two saxophone solos were played by Miss Rosemary Schreiner, with Miss Betty Weiler at the piano. Carl Palm played a group of two numbers on the musical saw and Miss Jackie Norris played an accordion solo, closing the program.

Tea was then served by the social committee. The tables were tastefully arranged with flowers and ferns, red, white and blue candles in crystal candelabra softly lighting the service. Red, white and blue ribbons and souvenir hatchets on the tables emphasized the patriotic theme. Favors of miniature hatchets were presented to each guest.

The Misses Laura and Emma Mader, Mrs. Irene Newton and Miss Anna Kirkwood, in Colonial costumes, presided at the tea table. The Colonial costumes of the members of the D. U. V. added a colorful note to the enjoyable affair. Appropriate refreshments were served by Mrs. Irene Jenkins, chairman of the social committee, assisted by Mrs. Evelyn Rader, Mrs. Annette Miller, Mrs. Nellie Stofor, Mrs. W. B. Cady, Miss Laura Mader, Mrs. Bertha Walker, Mrs. Laura Stout and Mrs. Addie Morris.

Those responsible for the attractive decorations of the hall included Miss Adah Hammel, Miss Nellie Palm, Mrs. Cora Coffland, Miss Anna Kirkwood and Mrs. Eleanor W. Bisell. Assisting the different committees, in making the affair the splendid success it was, were the officers of the organization, Mrs. Trimmer, president, Mrs. Carpenter, patriotic instructor, and Mrs. Frank Webbe, senior vice president, who comprised the general committee for the occasion.

The guests from out-of-town were Mrs. Mary Martin and Mrs. George Haswell, of Columbus. The Lucy Webb Hayes Tent, of Columbus was represented by the following members in colonial costumes: Mrs. Effie Schofield, district president; Mrs. Jessie Cleveland, Mrs. Grace Connor, Mrs. Dora Radebaugh, Mrs. Charlotte Hays, Mrs. Augusta Cobb, Mrs. Amelia Kulp and Mrs. Lola Spain. 150 Attend D. U. V. Tea Held in Memorial Hall

Ritual, Address Have Parts In Event

One hundred and fifty guests attended the Washington Tea, Thursday afternoon, given by the Daughters of Union Veterans in the Post room of Memorial Hall. Decorations appropriate to the patriotic affair were used in the room. This was one of the most outstanding affairs sponsored by the D. U. V. The guests were received by Mrs. J. S. Neuding, Miss Emily Yates, Mrs. Lucy B. Price, Mrs. George Hammel, Mrs. Hattie Pickens and Miss Daisy Murray.

The ritualistic opening of the meeting was directed by Mrs. James Trimmer, president. The color bearers escorted Mrs. Pickens, dressed as George Washington, and Miss Mary Haines, as Martha Washington, to their respective places, and the salute to the flag followed. After group singing of America, Mrs. Trimmer turned the meeting over to Mrs. James Carpenter, who presented the program.

Mrs. Beatrice Vogel, of Chillicothe, department patriotic instructor, was guest speaker. She gave an interesting address on "Patriotism."

A trio comprised of Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mrs. James Moffitt sang "In My Garden," by Firestone-Riegler, "Passing By," by Purcell and "Goodnight, Goodnight, Beloved," by Piniutti, accompanied at the piano by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer recited Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Two saxophone solos were played by Miss Rosemary Schreiner, with Miss Betty Weiler at the piano. Carl Palm played a group of two numbers on the musical saw and Miss Jackie Norris played an accordion solo, closing the program.

Tea was then served by the social committee. The tables were tastefully arranged with flowers and ferns, red, white and blue candles in crystal candelabra softly lighting the service. Red, white and blue ribbons and souvenir hatchets on the tables emphasized the patriotic theme. Favors of miniature hatchets were presented to each guest. The Misses Laura and Emma Mader, Mrs. Irene Newton and Miss Anna Kirkwood, in Colonial costumes, presided at the tea table. The Colonial costumes of the members of the D. U. V. added a colorful note to the enjoyable affair. Appropriate refreshments were served by Mrs. Evelyn Jenkins, chairman of the social committee, assisted by Mrs. Evelyn Rader, Mrs. Annette Miller, Mrs. Nellie Stofor, Mrs. W. B. Cady, Miss Laura Mader, Mrs. Bertha Walker, Mrs. Laura Stout and Mrs. Addie Morris.

Those responsible for the attractive decorations of the hall included Miss Adah Hammel, Miss Nellie Palm, Mrs. Cora Coffland, Miss Anna Kirkwood and Mrs. Eleanor W. Bisell. Assisting in the different committees, in making the affair the splendid success it was, were the officers of the organization, Mrs. Trimmer, president, Mrs. Carpenter, patriotic instructor, and Mrs. Frank Webbe, senior vice president, who comprised the general committee for the occasion.

The guests from out-of-town were Mrs. Mary Martin and Mrs. George Haswell, of Columbus. The Lucy Webb Hayes Tent, of Columbus was represented by the following members in colonial costumes: Mrs. Effie Schofield, district president; Mrs. Jessie Cleveland, Mrs. Grace Connor, Mrs. Dora Radebaugh, Mrs. Charlotte Hays, Mrs. Augusta Cobb, Mrs. Amelia Kulp and Mrs. Lola Spain. By defeating Hardin county this week the eagles representing the Pickaway County Club at Ohio State university became champions of the county leagues and will now compete with the title holders of the church, fraternity and independent flights for the University intramural championship.

Out of more than 200 teams Pickaway is one of 20 survivors.

A PHYSICS AXIOM
IT IS AN axiom of physics that two things cannot occupy the same space at the same time. That is the principle on which squeeze plays work. If it is a player's turn to discard on a certain trick, he is out of luck in case he needs one of his cards to guard against one of the same suit held by the enemy, and in addition needs two or more others to protect the bottom card of a rival combination. Either discard will wreck him.

On this deal the bidding was opened by North with 1-Spade. South jumped to 2-No Trumps, North to 4-No Trumps and South to 6-No Trumps.

West started the defense by leading the club Q, which was won with the K. The spades K and Q were now cashed, and it was evident to declarer that he could not hope to set up that suit. He therefore decided to try to pick up an extra trick in the diamond suit, so immediately tried the diamond J finesse. When this worked, he laid down the diamond A. From West's discards it was apparent that he was trying to protect his hearts, so the declarer decided to squeeze one more card out of that hand by playing a low spade and allowing East to win it. East returned another diamond, which South won with the K. A heart was now led to the Q and the spade A cashed. Next came the heart A. To the eleventh trick, a heart was led, and the A and as West had held hearts, the club 6 was set up. That trick, followed by the heart K, made the contract.

Petition Says Vehicle Past Highway's Center

William F. McCrady, police chief, filed suit for $13,361.40 in Common Pleas court Thursday against the Benedict Transportation Lines, Inc., of Columbus, for the death of his son, John, in an auto-truck collision on Route 23 on March 13, 1936.

The petition says McCrady was a passenger in the auto involved in the accident. McCrady, Bernard Dowden and Asa Elsea, all riding in the auto, were killed. It took place on a curve about 12 miles north of Circleville near the Delaplaine farm. The petition charges the tractor was being operated carelessly and was over the center line of the highway.

Damage actions were brought for the deaths of both Elsea and Dowden. Mrs. Asa Elsea sued for $22,786. A verdict for $5,666.66 was returned by a Common Pleas court jury. Motion for a new trial was asked by the transportation company and the case will be taken before the Court of Appeals in the Spring.

Spread across a background of the breath-taking scenic splendor of the great North Woods, the love story of a dashing army officer and a simple woods girl came to the screen of the Cliftona theatre on a double bill with "Randy Rides Alone," last night, when "The Barrier," picturization of the famous novel by Rex Beach, opened there, with a cast of film favorites headed by Leo Carrillo, Jean Parker, James Ellison, Otto Kruger, Robert Barrat, Andy Clyde and Sara Haden.

The action of the picture is built around the love story of James Ellison and Jean Parker. Miss Parker is the daughter of Robert Barrat, who runs a trading post with his Indian wife (Sara Haden). Ellison is the lieutenant in charge of an Army post in the same district. The two meet and fall in love, although both of them are afraid that Miss Parker's Indian blood will prevent their marriage.

No Screen Kiss For Them!

THE age of innocence triumphs! Jackie Cooper, who has never kissed a girl on the screen, will wait at least another year, until he is 16. Bonita Granville, also 15, has never been kissed before the camera. She'll wait, too. It all came about when directors tried a scene in the juvenile players' new picture and mothers of Cooper and Granville objected to their children kissing. But the director did win a minor victory, for Jackie will brush Bonita's brow gently in the scene in question.

Note to Gable Demanding $1,000 Leads to Arrest

FONDA, Ia., Feb. 25.—(UP)—A husky, unemployed farm worker admitted to federal agents today that he sent a $1,000 extortion note to Screen Actor Clark Gable to "spite" a pretty young widow who spurned his love.

Gaylor Forsyth, 30, mailed the note to Gable two weeks ago, signing the name of Mrs. Alice Schnetter, 20, member of a respected Iowa family. He said he had no plans for doing anything more than sending the letter.

"I did it for spite," he said. "I wouldn't pay any attention to me. Her father wouldn't let me near his place."

G-men slipped into this little community yesterday, arrested Forsyth and transferred him to the county jail at Pocahontas before the townsfolk, and even the town marshal, learned of the case.

Handwriting Traced

L. M. Chipman, chief of the Des Moines office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said Forsyth, who had no criminal record, was traced through his handwriting.

Mrs. Schnetter, he said, knew nothing about the letter and little about Forsyth's activities. She told Chipman she had "one or two" dates with Forsyth a few years ago but had ignored him since then.

Forsyth returned recently from Florida, where he had been employed in the kitchen of a Miami night club.

Since his return, Mrs. Schnetter said, strangers have sent her letters containing one dollar bills bearing her name. One of the bills bore the initials "G. F."

Chipman said Forsyth denied writing the letter until confronted with the initialed bill and specimens of his handwriting.

Forsyth's only concern was the effect his arrest would have on his mother and her neighbors. "Gosh," he said, "what will they think?"

Mrs. Forsyth made no statement. Her son was removed from the scene so quickly and quietly that few of the townsfolk had learned about it.

His arrest followed extensive work by G-men after the letter, postmarked from Fonda, Feb. 9, and bearing Mrs. Schnetter's home address, was received at the Hollywood studios of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

"If you value your life and your future then send me $1,000 right away and tell no one else," it said. The writer indicated that "her" father was hardpressed for money to maintain his farm and that "she" was going to get funds if "she" had to steal them.

Never Seen by Gable

Gable probably never saw the letter. Professional letter openers looked at it, then turned it over to studio officials who called in federal agents.

Forsyth's apprehension preserved Gable's undefeated record against would-be extortionists. Two years ago, Mrs. Violet Wells Norton, an Englishwoman, filed suit against him, charging he was the father of her daughter. Gable proved he had never been in England. Later Mrs. Norton was convicted of attempting extortion. She was deported to Canada this week.

Meeting Called For Monday At 8:15 In Memorial Hall For Disabled Veterans

DAYTON MAN TO SPEAK

Wounded, Gassed Soldiers May Organize Chapter

An open meeting of all war-time disabled veterans of the World War has been called by Lyman Spung, Columbus, commander of the central zone of the Ohio department of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War to be held in Memorial Hall, Monday, Feb. 28, beginning at 8:15 p. m. to form a local chapter of the congressionally chartered organization known as the D.A.V.

All World War veterans who were wounded, gassed or in some way disabled by their World War service are invited to attend.

This meeting has been called as a result of the interest of several war-time disabled veterans, who have expressed their desire to form a chapter in this county.

Mr. Spung points out that the primary purpose of the D. A. V., which was organized in 1921, is to advance and protect the interest of war-time disabled, and that a recent improvement in the rehabilitation service of the D. A. V. in Ohio gives this organization a set-up for handling the claim of a veteran on war-incurred disabilities before the regional office boards of the U. S. Veterans Administration, that is second to none in any state, and that a chapter in Pickaway county would make this valuable service more available to the disabled in this section.

Mr. Spung states that Bernard Southard, state director of rehabilitation for the Ohio D. A. V., with offices in the regional office of the U. S. Veterans administration, Dayton, Ohio, will address this meeting. Mr. Southard is thoroughly familiar with all laws and regulations pertaining to benefits for war-time disabled veterans, experiences in the technical preparation and prosecution of their claims, and will answer all questions on individual claims following the meeting.

Veterans Administration, that is second to none in any state, and that a chapter in Pickaway county would make this valuable service more available to the disabled in this section.

Mr. Spung states that Bernard Southard, state director of rehabilitation for the Ohio D. A. V., with offices in the regional office of the U. S. Veterans administration, Dayton, Ohio, will address this meeting. Mr. Southard is thoroughly familiar with all laws and regulations pertaining to benefits for war-time disabled veterans, experiences in the technical preparation and prosecution of their claims, and will answer all questions on individual claims following the meeting.
